

There is something beautiful in text and type and books their spines broken or not by one trying to extract their juice and in the text: a stamp of what though?

An impression of the senses ~ an approximation but not the thing itself